Transition From ISO 9001:2008 to ISO 9001:2015

ISO 9001 is being revised and will represent one of the most significant releases since ISO 9001:2000. ISO 9001:2015, which is due to be published in September 2015 will have a major impact on organizations that are currently ISO 9001 certified.

What does this mean to your organization?

Organizations that are currently certified to ISO 9001:2008 will have to transition their existing quality management systems, including their documentation to meet the new requirements of ISO 9001:2015.

Some of the new requirements include:

- Complete Restructuring of the Standard
- Major Change to the Process Approach
- Risk Based Thinking
- Leadership & Commitment
- Inclusion of Services
- Management of Change
- Nonconforming Process Outputs

"We contacted a few different companies that took over a week to respond to our inquiries and all quoted between $30k—$50k without even so much as looking at our current system to see what we really needed. The ISO 9001 Group contacted us immediately and discussed our needs. They impressed us from the very beginning and continued to impress us throughout. They stayed on budget and delivered our system on time. Our company is running smoother and is more organized. Audits are no longer stressful because we are confident in our system and are proud to present it to auditors. I would personally recommend The ISO 9001 Group to anyone without the hesitation."
